I work in education because...

I always thought I wanted to be a lawyer, until high school. During my high school time I would tutor elementary school students and decided I would do something in a school setting. I taught pre-school for several years before having children of my own and then I decided to stay home with them until the all started school. I then returned to the elementary setting working as a Cafeteria/Recess monitor until I decided to join Rogers as an Administrative Assistant.
